BOYCOTT FOR BUTCHER SHOPS

Strikers Post Pickets to Watch Any Shops That Tay To Buy Meat From Packers.

WILL TRY TO STOP DELIVERY OF ICE

Police Are Ready To Protect Any Union Ice Teamster Who Does His Work--Situation Is More Critical.

Special to Scripps-Melroe.
Chicago, Ill., Aug. 9.—Pickets were stationed in all the retail meat markets today where meat was being purchased from the big packers. They will attempt to prevent the delivery of ice. Two hundred and fifty markets are on the boycott list, which is being constantly extended. The police are preparing a counter campaign to protect union ice-men. Many clashes are expected. Secret arrangements are under way to draw the freight handlers and switchmen into the strike. The teamsters' council is considering an extension of the strike to all drivers connected with the packing industry.

To-day the Chicago leaders of the teamsters, who have been at the convention for the last week, will return and assume charge of affairs. The teamsters' joint council will meet tonight and the ice wagon drivers will be given instructions to refuse to deliver ice to all markets using the product of the big packers.

This program was practically decided on several days ago, but the temporary officers in charge hesitated about assuming the responsibility. The matter has been allowed to drag along until the leaders returned from the convention. It is declared there will be no further hesitation and that the teamsters will take up the fight in earnest to-morrow.

Plan New Form of Attack.

The strike leaders propose to attack the packers in another direction. A committee of aldermen from the southwest wards of the city will meet Mayor Harrison and take up the question of alleged violations of city ordinances by the packers in feeding and housing men in the packing plants. A committee of labor men and aldermen talked over the matter, but the city fathers decided that the complaints of the labor men were not prepared in the proper manner. An attorney was engaged, and he has drawn up formal complaints.

Strike Leader's Statement.

An official statement has been issued by Michael Donnelly showing reasons from the strikers' point of view why the figures given out by the packers about the amount of business they are

RESERVES BREAK OUT IN RUSSIA

Three Thousand in the District of Koursk Are Finally Captured by the Police.

Special to Scripps-Melroe.
St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—Advises from Spichler of the government of Koursk state that three thousand reserves attacked and dispersed the police and then attacked the shops and raided the imperial whiskey monopoly. The troops finally quelled the mutiny and arrested the ringleaders.

FINDS TRACE OF POISON IN DEAD GIRL'S STOMACH

Fort Wayne Chemist Discovers Strychnine in the Intestines of Miss Crystal Kraus.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 9.—Dr. Parker Drayer of Fort Wayne, to whom the stomach and intestines of Crystal Kraus were sent for chemical examination, has discovered traces of strychnine in both.

It was also learned that the Little was the white powder found with the note in Crystal's bed late Tuesday afternoon, after the doctor and the physicians had made a thorough search, entombed arsenic in cornmeal, and not strychnine.

Mr. Kraus visited his wife in jail Sunday, and remained with her for several hours. He still claims that he cannot believe his wife guilty.

It is claimed that the woman's attorneys will attempt to have thrown out the testimony of Mrs. P. N. Burke, who claims she saw Mrs. Kraus hand the note, and that Mrs. Burke could not see her friend in her bed.

An attempt was made in the preliminary hearing Saturday to break the testimony of Mrs. Burke, and in this Attorney Hindman partially succeeded. The defense will attempt to prove that Mrs. Kraus was欺骗ing the court when she got the note, and that Mrs. Burke could not see her friend in her bed. Photographs of the two hands, which are side by side, will be taken, and it is on this ground that Hindman hopes to prove his assertion to the court.

NEWS OF THE STATE IN BRIEF.

The Redmen of Wisconsin will hold their state lodge meeting at La Crosse four days, Aug. 11, 12, 13, and 14.

The steamer Lizzie Gardner, having in tow a raft of logs, has been overdue at La Crosse, for ten days and fears are felt for her safety.

The corpse found floating in Lake Winnebago, off Neenah, Saturday night, has been identified as Robert Paine, aged 22 years, of Neenah.

J. S. Devereaux, a merchant of Shell Lake, has had some of the entice taken from his body to be grafted on his son, Maurice, who lost a foot in a railway accident.

After several years of litigation between the city of Kaukauna and the Kaukauna Electric Lighting company, the company will receive $10,000 to settle all differences.

A stock company is in process of formation at Glenwood, the object of which is the erection of a brick fireproof hotel, the ground dimensions to be 75x70. The site selected is central, on the principal business street.

A Mr. Kent from Astoria was found dead at the Plainfield house of the landlord, F. C. Hamel.

The Roosevelt-Cook club recently organized at Glenwood now has a membership of 145.

A young son of F. B. Voight of Appleton narrowly escaped drowning Saturday. He drove his buggy into the river to wash it, and the swift current carried horse and all down.

Frederick Koester, an old resident of Fort Atkinson, died suddenly in his chair after having eaten his supper. He was 74 years of age.

The caueuses throughout Vernon county Saturday were largely attended. The returns indicate that there was no opposition anywhere to Sen. Munson and Assemblyman Dahl for renomination.

A movement has been started at Darlington to form a Roosevelt and Cook republican club.

A GOSSIPY LETTER FROM THE CAPITAL

WORKING OUT OF THE RAILWAY TAXATION LAW—RESULTS.

TALK ON FOOTBALL TEAM

Illinois Central Files Big Mortgage in Dane County Register of Deeds Office.

Madison, Wis.—As a result of the ad valorem taxation law passed by the Wisconsin legislature of 1903 railroads operating in this state must pay $659,633.26 more taxes into the state coffers than last year. Senator John M. Whitehead of Janesville, as chairman of the senate committee on assessment and collection of taxes, had a leading part in making the law, and both factions supported it. This is the last year of taxation under the old license fee system and the increase next year over the amount paid this year will be $793,658.32. The increase over the taxes paid by railroads in 1901, the year in which the "reform" governor, La Follette, first recommended to the legislature the enactment of law requiring the railroad property to be assessed and taxed according to the method of taxing the property of individuals, is $1,006,664.51. The taxes to be paid by the railroads in 1905, according to the new assessment, will be $2,607,000. The state tax commission determined the value of the general property of the state to be $1,753,120,000 on which the amount of taxes levied is $20,640,543.16. This does not include $135,636.27 of poll taxes. The total property owned by railroad companies in the state is valued at $221,431,400 on which a tax has been levied under the new law of $2,607,044.60.

A mortgage contract for $20,000,000 was filed by the Illinois Central Railway company in the office of the Dane county register of deeds. The loan is made by the United States Trust company of New York and the time of the loan expires in 1952. The mortgage is the largest one that was ever filed in this county. It contains 58 printed pages.

A number of candidates for this year's University of Wisconsin football team will take an outing about August 25. They will go on schedule spot on the Mississippi river, near the city of La Crosse, and there preliminary practice will be held. Strict rules of training will be in force. It is the aim of the coaches to get the men in good condition so as to stand the hard training which comes later in the season. This has been done by both the Minnesota and Michigan authorities for the past few years and has met with great favor.

ROCK RIVER IS LOW AT PRESENT

Mud Banks Show in Profusion Up the Stream—Good Rain Is Needed.

There has been a woeful scarcity of water in the Rock river during the past few days and if the stream go down much more it may cause difficulty for the steamboat men as well as some of the plants situated on the water power.

The absence of a heavy and steady rain has told greatly on the volume of water in the stream and mud flats and beaches are showing everywhere.

LAYING OF SEWERS SOON TO COMMENCE

Contracts for Four Districts Awarded to M. J. Benson of Chicago—Work Begins August 20.

M. J. Benson of Chicago to whom has been awarded the contracts for laying all of the sewers to be constructed this year, expects to commence work on August 20. Main street will be the first thoroughfare to be torn up and operations will be started at the corner of South First street. One hundred laborers and a half dozen teams will be needed at the outset. The material will be shipped from Illinois factories. Mr. Benson's bids, the lowest of all submitted, were as follows:

District No. 5 $10,983.25
District No. 6 4,412.91
District No. 11 3,923.00
District No. 12 8,495.00

There were in the cases of some of the districts differences of over a thousand dollars in the bids. The local firm of R. F. Flinley & McGavock made the following proposals: District No. 5—$12,182.05. District No. 6—$5,035.21. District No. 11—$4,692.28. District No. 12—$11,067.55. Hayes Bros. made the following bids: District 5—$14,573.67. District 6—$5,929.78. District 11—$5,119.55. District 12—$11,160.95. Mr. Benson's bid was accompanied by the ten per cent certified check and the contract was let on the recommendation of the street assessment committee consisting of Mayor J. F. Hutchinson, City Engineer C. V. Kerch, and Alderman W. A. Murray.

SOFTNESS OF SEALSKIN.

Is Rivalled by Human Hair Where Dandruff is Eradicated.

Sealskin is admired the world over for its softness and glossiness; and yet the human hair is equally as soft and glossy when healthy; and the radical cause of all hair trouble is dandruff, which is caused by a ravenous parasite that gnaws the vitality of the hair at its root. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that is fatal to the dandruff germ. Without dandruff there is no falling hair, but a luxuriant growth of glossy, soft hair is certain. Scrubbing the scalp won't cure dandruff. Kill the dandruff germ. Thousands of women owe their beautiful coats of hair to Newbro's Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. News for the Railroad Men.

J. Lee Edwards, general agent for the Southern railway, is coming to Chicago with a view to interesting business men in the Cuban trade. It is expected that he will organize a party and take them to Cuba to demonstrate the possibilities of trade between the two countries. It is said that the Cuban trade now amounts to fully $25,000,000 annually, and that the United States secures only about $3,000,000, the bulk going to Germany, Spain and England.

Colorado lines are considering a proposition to reduce the passenger rates from the Missouri river points to Colorado common points, in order to see if travel cannot be increased. It is said that business to the resorts of Colorado has decreased over 40 per cent below that of the same period in 1903.

A meeting of the Missouri river lines has been called for today to make regulations regarding the reshipping of wheat at Missouri river points. In former years more or less demobilization has been caused by lack of uniformity.

Trunk lines have turned a deaf ear to the appeal of the Millers' National Federation for equalization in the flour and grain rates. The millers claim that owing to the lesser grain rates, foreign millers are able to buy grain in America and ship it to Europe and there manufacture it into flour cheaper than the American miller can sell American-made flour in Europe.

The Interurban Ry. will sell round-trip tickets for the Freeport races, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Fare for the round trip, $1.95.

LATE TALK ON THE SUGAR BEET

LaFayette Myer Says Some Things That Farmers Should Pay Attention To.

By La Fayette Myer

The past two weeks have been quite favorable although it continues very dry in some localities. All the work has been finished and nearly all the fields are in excellent shape. There are of course a few weedy fields but the majority of the growers have taken excellent care of the acreage they planted and all seem satisfied with the progress the crop is making.

With at least two months to grow yet the beets will certainly yield a good tonnage and from the present outlook will yield better than any of the other farm products. A trip through the beet growing district around Edgerton last week showed the crop in excellent condition there and everyone satisfied and talking beets. We have no more instruction to give for the cultivation of the crop until harvest time, however those few who have weedy fields will be greatly disappointed with the results this fall if they do not clean them out at once.

HURLED AGAINST TELEGRAPH POLE

William Good Sustained Terrible Injuries in Attempting to Alight from Fast Moving Car.

William Good, a mason residing six miles south of Janesville, may not recover from injuries received as a result of his attempt to alight from the northbound Interurban car "Beloit" while it was going at full speed just after crossing the Spring Brook bridge last evening. As he attempted to clear the car he was hurled with terrific force against a telegraph pole. He was brought to this city in an unconscious state and removed to the Palmer hospital where an examination was made by Drs. Palmer and Penber. It was found that in addition to three scalp wounds the man was suffering from concussion of the brain. His recovery is a matter of grave doubt.

MUST ALTER PLANS FOR FIRE STATION

Two Bids for Construction Submitted Last Evening Were Rejected by the Council.

Two bids for the construction of the new fire station in Spring Brook, submitted to the city council last evening, were both found to be too high under the limit set in the ordinance authorizing the construction of such a station. Blair & Summers made proposals to build the station for $2,556, and accompanied their offer with a certified check for $300. J. G. Wray offered to build the station for $3,200 and his bid was accompanied by no check. The Rock County Concrete Stone Co. made a partial bid on the foundations, caps, window sills, etc., amounting to $1,335.95. The city clerk was directed to make such changes in the plans and specifications as might be approved by the fire and water committee and re-advertise for bids.

DELIGHTFUL TIME AT NOTED SPOT

Elenore Writes of Her Visit to St Francis—What She Saw.

After riding about three hours on a railway train, what a delicious sense of peace and quietness stole over us, as we alighted at St. Francis, Wisconsin, from the car that had borne us some five miles from the noise and bustle of Milwaukee.

A gentle rain was falling, and as we hurried along, we saw the college, silent and deserted, for the students were away enjoying the summer vacation.

Soon we could catch glimpses of the seminary through the trees. As we drew nearer it proved to be a large five-story brick building.

But we did not spend much of that evening in sightseeing—we were too tired and the weather the disagreeable for that.

Sunday morning we attended mass in the seminary chapel and after breakfast we visited the chapel of the woods, perhaps a quarter of a mile from the seminary. What a lovely place it is with its altar almost covered with fragrant flowers, and no sounds to disturb one's prayers, lest it be the twittering of a wild bird high up amid the rustling leaves.

A short distance from this chapel is the grotto or underground chapel.

CLEVER STORY IS NOW INTERWOVEN

"Girl From Dixie" Is Full of Catchy Music and Pleasing Situations.

Differing radically from the average production of this nature, the new piece "A Girl from Dixie," which Sam S. Shubert will present at the Grand opera house, Friday night, Aug. 19, while termed a musical comedy, is in reality a comedy drama with interpolated musical numbers. The story possesses that continuity of thought and action, the absence of which is usually the most striking characteristic of the general run of the latter day musical comedy. Several composers have contributed to the production, the list including Ludwig Engländer, Victor Herbert, George Rosey, Ben Jerome, W. E. Beck, Will M. Cook and Max Wilt.

This variety of talent gives the piece thoroughly cosmopolitan atmosphere although throughout the famous "Dixie" is the motif. The chorus will be of a rather different type from the usual assemblage, since practically each member will have lines. It will include two groups of eight, one of show girls and the other, known as "broilers," which are by no means insignificant factors in the performance. In fact, in this star play the chorus is quite as important as the stars.

FREE WATER IS VERY POPULAR

ALL THE ALDERMEN DEMAND DRINKING FOUNTAINS

FOR THEIR RESPECTIVE WARDS

Aldermen Bused Themselves with Several Important Matters Last Night.

With the exception of a wordy scramble of the city fathers for drinking fountains for their respective wards and a few impromptu eulogies on the potency and virtues of cold water, the session of the council last evening was uneventful. Not a word was said about the neglect of the newly-appointed dog-catcher to file his bonds. It all came to Aldermen Matheson and Sheridan absent. The usual bills were passed upon and the city treasurer's report for July and likewise that of the municipal court were received and placed on file. Alderman Jackman in behalf of the Judiciary committee asked for more time to pass upon the notice of injury filed by Mrs. Mary A. Keating. The bond of W. S. Jeffries, newly appointed member of the fire and police commission, was found to be defective and orders given that it be returned to him to be filled out. After an investigation of the Title Guarantee & Trust Co. of Scranton, Pa., the committee was willing to accept its bond for the city treasurer. The same was true of the $50,000 bond furnished by the Bower City bank, the official depository of the city. Both bonds were accepted by a resolution. By a rousing vote Alderman Connell was thanked for his invitation to the council to be his guests at an entertainment at Electric park. Alderman Connell complained that the resolution was a trifle "preliminary" as he had extended no such invitation.

Question of New Fountains

Alderman Schwartz of the fire and water committee recommended the rejection of all bids offered on the new fire station. The report of the street commissioner on sidewalks built by the city was accepted and the city clerk was instructed to charge the cost of the same to the tax-roll. Alderman Merritt of the sewerage committee moved the adoption of the street assessment committee's report on bids for sewer construction. G. H. Rogers was awarded the contract of painting the detention hospital at a cost of $31. An order instructing the street assessment committee to receive proposals for the construction of a drinking fountain at the intersection of West Milwaukee and Pleasant streets, on the same lines as the one at the corner of Highland avenue and Pearl street, was introduced by Alderman Schmidley and aroused a discussion of the advisability of the city's going into the drinking fountain business on a wholesale scale. It appeared that Alderman Merritt had a similar resolution providing for a new fountain on the Corn Exchange, and still others were wanted at the Five Points and on Milton avenue; Alderman Jackman thought that $140 each for these fountains was too much; Ald. Schmidley claimed it was the standard price; Ald. Schwartz didn't think the citizens would object; Ald. Connell said that there was no place for a man to get a drink on Milton avenue. Ald. Schmidley said that the Five Points had become the busiest place in the city for water-slice the licenses were withdrawn. A motion that the city clerk receive sealed proposals for the construction of four drinking fountains was carried. It has cost the city $60 to repair one of the old fountains this year. Drinking fountains are, of course, important but not a word was said about the previous business of having the dog ordinance enforced.

Side-walks and Grades

The report of the street commissioners relating to side-walks was adopted. Side-walk lines were called for on the south side of School street from Linn to Locust, and on the east side of School from Linn to Holmes. Brick cross-walks were ordered at the alley between Washington and Terrace, on Wall street between Madison and Washington, and on the north side of Dodge street across High, Sherman to build four foot walks was granted to the owners of lots 4 and 5 of block 11, Palmer & Sutherland's addition; to L. M. Nelson in front of lots 1 and 2 of Brown's addition on Racine street; in front of the property on the east side of Washington street from Elmore Place to the city limits; to the owners of lots 152 and 153 on Prairie avenue and the north six feet of lot 7 and the south half of lot 8 on Hickory street.

Problem of Hospital Service

After the council had passed upon the motion of Alderman Schmidley authorizing a refund of $1 to William Brand for a dog license tag purchased while the old one was temporarily lost, spectators naturally expected to hear something about the enforcement of the ordinance relating to canines, but were disappointed. On the suggestion of Alderman Connell the street commissioner was instructed to put the street scraper in repair. Aldermen Schwartz, Merritt, and Schmidley were appointed as a committee to investigate the feasibility of the city's buying a voting booth in the fourth ward. Alderman Jackman moved that a committee consisting of the mayor, the city attorney, and the health officer be empowered to draw up a contract with the Palmer hospital authorities and A. A. Russell for taking care of all emergency cases, the expense of which should be for any sufficient reason devolve upon the city, and report such contract for approval at the next council meeting. On this question as in the case of so many others, Janesville's peculiar charter must be careful to have the last word. The county looks after the city's poor and there is a question of the legality of any move on the part of the latter to care for its own afflicted.

Petition Against Sewer

The street commissioner was instructed to open the storm sewer on the north side of Fourth avenue from Nels Carlson's corner to the river. Alderman Grove reported the completion of the plans and specifications for the Mole culvert and apron and these were adopted. The city clerk was authorized to call for bids. Property owners on Fifth avenue, nineteen in number, petitioned against the laying of a public sewer on that thoroughfare. The matter was referred to the committee on sewerage.

Janesville Daily Gazette, Tuesday, August 9, 1864.—Madison Excursion.—An excursion train will leave Madison for Janesville tomorrow, the 10th, at 9 a. m., and arrive at Janesville about 11 a. m. The first M. E. S. S. of Janesville, will form in procession where the train stops near the old depot grounds, and escort our Madison friends to the grove of Mr. Crosby, where a formal reception will be given them, after which the citizens and children of the two places expect to have a fine social time together. An excursion train for Janesville and Madison is expected to arrive here about the same time with the train from Madison. The friends of Sunday schools and Sunday school children, generally in the city of Janesville are cordially invited to be present and enjoy the pleasure of the occasion. A plenty of water and ice will be furnished on the grounds. J. Sutherland, marshal.

Lecture in Behalf of the Christian Mission.—Clara Vernon, a lady well known in the lecture world, will give a lecture at the court room in this city on Wednesday evening in behalf of the Christian commission. It is to be hoped that she will have a large audience.

Oblated Ball.—We were in error yesterday in stating that Mrs. Killbourn appeared before Justice Judson. It was Justice Baker who held her to bail in the sum of $300, which she obtained. Mr. Zimmerman furnished the bond with another gentleman as surety.

Special meeting.—There was a special meeting of the common council last evening at which there was little business done, save a committee appointed to take testimony in the sidewalk improvement matter.

Fresh Oysters.—Thurston & Case have received a lot of fresh oysters. Give them a call and try them.

Flemen's Tournament.—The Fond du Lac Reporter has the following paragraph in reference to preparations for the tournament:

"The fence around the tournament has been completed. The situation of offices, stands, etc., have been selected. Almost everything is ready here for the grand event, which will come off on the 24th and 25th."

VERDICT OF THE PARTY.

From the report of the Committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, which was unanimously adopted by that convention, June 25, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected said John C. Spencer, J. V. Quarles, J. W. Babcock and Emil Bierens as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin WAS THE REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN, and that the delegates elected by it are the regular elected delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention, and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

THE TWO PARTIES.

It is noticeable that Senator Fairbanks, in his speech of acceptance of the republican nomination for vice-president, lays particular stress upon the money issue. He directs attention to the positive utterances in the republican platform in favor of the gold standard, and of the silence in the democratic platform on that question. He speaks of the declaration made recently by Mr. Bryan of his intention to begin immediately to advocate for a reorganization of the democratic party in accordance with his well known policies, and argues that it is dangerous to commit the government of the United States to the democratic party in view of the uncertainty in its own ranks in regard to this vital matter.

As regards the maintenance of the gold standard, The Wall Street Journal does not feel any special anxiety. It says plainly that the positive declaration made by Judge Parker in his telegram to Mr. Sheehan seems to us to make it impossible to change that standard if he should be elected president. Of course something would depend upon the man whom he should select as secretary of the treasury, as the secretary has large powers of discretion that might be used either to strengthen or weaken that standard. Still, in view of the stand Judge Parker has taken, there can be no doubt that he would appoint as secretary a man who would be in accordance with his views. Then there is the practical certainty that the senate would be under republican control, even if Judge Parker should be elected, and with the republican senate it would be impossible to pass a law repealing the present gold standard act. Moreover, public sentiment is now committed to the gold standard. The free silver agitation is dead, and any efforts that Mr. Bryan may make to resurrect it, it seems to us, are doomed to failure.

Nevertheless, there is an element of truth in the warning made by Senator Fairbanks. The danger involved in the election of Judge Parker lies, however, not so much in Judge Parker himself, or in any uncertainty as regards the gold standard, as in the men who may surround Judge Parker and in the elements which compose the party behind him. In this respect the democratic party presents a striking contrast to the republican. President Roosevelt has substantially a united party supporting him. There are, of course, shades of opinion in the republican party as regards the tariff, as regards the regulation of the corporations, and as regards the government of the Philippines, as well as regarding other questions, but these differences are not radical, and they do not prevent that party solidification which is necessary for effective governmental action. But, in electing Parker, the people of the United States would run all the hazards involved in turning over the government to a party divided widely in regard to its principles and its aims, containing irreconcileable elements and having no settled policy, a party, moreover, which in the past eight years has been under the control, first of one element, and then of another element within it. We make this statement not because of any partisan prejudice against the democratic party, but simply as a statement of a self-evident fact. If that party had a consistent policy that was supported by the great mass of its members, it would be entitled to respect and confidence. At present the more conservative element of the party has control of it, and it has nominated an eminent jurist as candidate for the presidency. But what guarantee is there it will be able to retain control of it, or that if Judge Parker is elected he will be able to keep the party in line for those policies which are essential for a continuance of our business prosperity?

This is a question which many of our business men are asking. Many of them would, no doubt, be glad to vote the democratic ticket, and yet they are fearful of the discordant, widely inconsistent elements making up the organization that is back of Judge Parker, and it may be added that they are also fearful of some of the political leaders by whom Judge Parker has been so long surrounded.

GOVERNMENT VS. CORPORATION SERVICE.

We frequently hear of government officials resigning to enter into the services of banks and corporations, but we rarely hear of corporation officials resigning to enter into the government service. The recent resignation of Mr. Morton as vice-president of the Atchison system to become secretary of the navy was so unusual as to excite remarks. We do not recall any other instance, in recent years, of a high official of a great corporation abandoning it for the government service. Lyman J. Gage resigned as president of the First National Bank of Chicago to become secretary of the treasury, but he resigned that position to become president of the United States Trust Co. of New York.

Some leading business men have indeed temporally entered the service of the government, like Levi P. Morton, John Wanamaker and Cornelius N. Bliss, but they did not remain long in it. Mr. Bliss resigned from the cabinet after two years' service because he could no longer afford to sacrifice the important financial interests requiring his personal direction.

Even our great lawyers find more profit out of the government than in it. Elihu Root and P. C. Knox are better off out of the cabinet than they were in members of it. Mr. Moody, the new attorney-general, it is said, will retire next year, because the emoluments of a private practice are more alluring than the honors of political distinction.

A good many clever young men go into the government as a stepping stone to some profitable position in the business world. A man who makes a good record as assistant secretary or as head of a bureau is generally picked up by some corporation or bank at a fine salary. "I don't intend to remain in this department more than two or three years," said a leading government official not long ago, "and am flurrying on getting into business."

One of our leading men of affairs asked to become candidate was advised against it by his friends. "There is nothing in it," they said, "you have more profit and influence where you are."

It is probable that nothing could induce President Cassatt, of the Pennsylvania railroad, to resign that position to enter the cabinet. Another railroad president who was asked to consider the nomination for governor of a great state, declined on the ground that his present position gave him more power and distinction. It was recently alleged that on a public occasion one of our governors was seen very humbly carrying the hat of a leading corporation president.

There can be no doubt that public service in a monarchy is more attractive than in a republic. In the former a bit of ribbon and a little gold lace add amazingly to the attractiveness of office. The decorations, the orders, which are one of the rewards of public service in a monarchy, are lacking in our country. We have nothing that corresponds with the Garter and other orders in England and the Legion of Honor in France. Recently the French government decorated our secretary of state with the grand cross of this order, but it will take a special act of congress to enable Mr. Hay to accept it.

Now these orders increase the social prestige of the wearers, and government service is the best way of attracting this distinction. But to hold a government office in the United States does not necessarily increase a man's social distinctions or opportunities. The president of a railroad and his wife are apt to move in high society as a member of the cabinet and his wife.

Then government service in the United States, in its highest places at least, is poorly paid. As secretary of the navy Mr. Morton draws a lower salary than he did as vice-president of the Atchison. If John Hay were not a man of wealth, his salary of $3,000 a year would not enable him to support the dignity and perform the necessary social duties of secretary of state. Joseph H. Choate's salary as ambassador of England, $17,500 a year, probably does not pay the yearly rental of the house he occupies in London.

This state of things did not operate badly in the earlier days of our country, when the greatest rewards of ambition were to be found in her service. But now ambition finds a wider scope in business. Commercial enterprise offers greater rewards. How to meet this condition is to become more and more a problem.

Something must be done to make the government service in its highest places more attractive. It has been years since the salaries of the leading officials have been advanced. It is all very well to talk about "democratic simplicity," but it cannot be expected that a $100,000 a year man will give up that for an $8,000 a year place. The salaries of our president, our cabinet officers, and heads of departments are absurdly inadequate.

Evidently Mr. Kempf is on the lower branch of the tree and is so situated that he can tell the bad boys who are stoning him that if he comes down something more is going to drop and they will not be as pleased with the rest of the burden as they would be to see him fall.

Rock county farmers want rain and want rain badly. They are not particular whether it comes by bucket fulls or in a steady drizzle, so long as it comes and soaks up the dry fields once more.

Some way old Mother Nature seems to be neglecting Wisconsin a little these past two or three years. But then, the old lady is in her dotage so she must be forgiven.

When a great commotion is raised over a little thing and the little thing is quietly settled those who raised the commotion look ashamed at themselves.

The manner in which the Free Press tangles itself up and untangles itself by contortions within a week make the outsider look on and laugh.

The first gun in the settlement of the state fight has been fired. The next will be when the supreme court hands down its decision.

Carter Harrison visited Janesville but he did not catch enough fish to break the meat famine in the Windy City.

When a man gets all he can out of one party and turns to the other for a plum he ought to be beaten.

County officials are not owned by the incumbents even though they have been holding on for years past.

Janesville does not seem to realize what a vast amount of building is being done about the city this spring.

Wrecks of World's Fair fliers seem to be the proper thing for aspirating railroads to do now days.

When a man expects to catch a good big mess of fish then is the time he is sorely disappointed.

Summer days are waning and the autumn draws near with its cold days and cool nights.

Something will drop besides the supreme court decision soon.

The battle royal has begun at Madison.

PRESS COMMENT.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The average bachelor is always shy about holding babies, unless they happen to be girl babies and have reached the age of discretion.

Grant County Herald: Kempf is not resigning from the republican ticket for he is not on it.

Milwaukee Sentinel: It is now ascertained that Kuroki's father was a Pole, and the faintly Irish aroma of the name of Kuropatkin should not be overlooked.

Sheboygan Journal: Sheboygan Falls taxpayers have only one watch costing as much as $50, and no bicycles. Most of the residents carry alarm clocks on their vest fronts, and ride in wheelbarrows, judging by the assessors' returns.

Chicago Chronicle: That overworked aphorism, "drat th' egg'stinkin' tail," is probably the best way to describe the present situation. "I'd rather be right than be president," has been dug up once more and affixed to Judge Parker. As the declaration is coupled with the St. Louis telegram incident, the story requires no comment.

Ashland Press: State Treasurer Kempf knows how it is himself now. A little more bowing of the knee, a little more submissiveness to the boss in the executive chamber, and life would have been all sunshine for Mr. Kempf.

Chicago Record-Herald: A peanut was found inside of an egg laid by a Kansas hen the other day. D. B. Hill says the signs all point to the election of the man of his choice.

Green Bay Gazette: The Green Bay

young lady who swallowed two pints of worm medicine by mistake is to be congratulated upon her escape from death. The news report, however, fails to state whether the worm is also to be congratulated.

Evening Wisconsin: It's a bad thing to make up your state ticket with people whom you will want to put off after you have obtained, by letting them on, the votes of their delegates, which were necessary to help you to make a stronger showing for yourself.

Racine Times: An expert who has returned from the Rosebud country says the lands are not desirable. For some time society in that neighborhood has been nothing to brag about either.

Menasha Record: When La Follette tries to boot John J. Kempf off his ticket he should remember that Kempf was brought up in the boot and shoe business and has spent most of his life kicking.

St. Paul Globe: A student has been ousted from the Madison university because the summer eods objected to his flirting with them. The summer eod appears to differ from the winter eod.

Racine Journal: South Carolina will not succeed in her bravado of making and selling whiskey in defiance of internal revenue regulations and taxes. The courts say a state has no more right than the individual business to do it.

Superior Telegram: Judge Parker is an Episcopalian, Senator Davis a Methodist, Mr. Roosevelt a Dutch Reformed and Senator Fairbanks a Methodist. None is a driftwood; all active church members. Now where is the fellow who said that none but the wicked are in politics?

La Crosse Chronicle: It would not have been nearly so good a story if a Waukesha man had been hanged out of $2,000 in Chicago. To have a man from the home of the buccaneers fledged in a country town like Waukesha is a reflection which Chicago will feel deeply. There is only one consolation: It may not have been done by "home talent."

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: The New York World remarks that "if the democrats lose New York all is lost." Not quite all. There is Kentucky and there is Mississippi—in fact, there is also Texas, notwithstanding former Governor Hogg has declared for Roosevelt and Fairbanks against Tammany and the venerable past.

Milwaukee News: While about it, Governor La Follette might have obtained Sturdevant's resignation and cleaned up the attorney general's office. However, Bancroft, Corrigan and Tucker are "loyal" and all that is needed in their case is "additional legislation," so they won't be able to do it again.

Eau Claire Leader: A short time before the Elder Pillsbury, the great flour magnate died he uttered words which are proving prophetic: "the day is not far off when the Minneapolis mills will have a hard pull. The country mills will get the lion's share of the trade. They can buy their wheat cheaper than we can and they can make flour and just as good flour." This has nearly come about, the people of Eau Claire are every day getting more and more into the way of home made flour and the demand will necessitate the enlargement of the present mills or the erection of new ones.

ELMS SEEM TO BE SADLY STRICKEN

Reported To Be Dying in Many Parts of the City—Leaves Are Falling.

Is Janesville to lose its magnificent forest of elm trees? This is a question that is bothering many people about the city just now. In many localities the leaves of the trees seem to be turning yellow—as yellow as they are late in the fall. Many trees have begun to shed their summer dress as though it was autumn indeed. Perhaps it is the cold summer or perhaps the trees are dying.

The yellowing process was observed first as long as three weeks ago, possibly four; and it has come on very rapidly since. The cause can hardly be due to drought, because the ground was soaked, the heavy rains not over, when the turning foliage revealed the presence of disease. The trees not only cast their leaves, but with the leaves come small twigs. On leaf and twig there is no evidence of disease, so far as the lay eye can detect, nor can destroying insect be seen on these parts. Superficially, the foliage seems merely to have ripened and fallen, although the many little dead twigs prove that this is not maturing but by no means of a natural character.

A close inspection of the trunk reveals no large borers, but under the bark may be found tiny grooves and an abundance of excrement showing the presence of insects of some description. In no case do the trees seem to be completely, or even largely, girdled, which fact has led to the theory that possibly the trouble belongs rather to the roots than to body or branches. Acting on this hypothesis, some property owners have been snaking the ground at the base of a diseased tree with a medicated solution calculated to kill insect life. Others soak the ground with water simply to give the trees added nourishment to "build up on," so to speak, just as might be done in the case of a sick human patient needing food. It has been suggested that, maybe, the elms produced seeds too abundantly this season, and thus encroached upon their own vitality to such an extent as to promote an abnormally early ripening. Certainly never were elm seeds more plentiful, falling so thickly in some places as almost to strangle the grass.

The theory that escaping gas may have caused the affliction is disputed by the gas company, which points to the significant fact that trees are dying at points far remote from mains. If that is so—and it seems to be—the defense is conclusive.

RECKONINGS WITH MUNICIPAL COURT

Harold Marsh, Eddie Barry, Thomas Mackin and Others Had Them Today.

Jennie Carr who was yesterday committed to the Girls' Industrial school in Milwaukee for wandering in public places and associating with evil characters, was taken there by Sheriff Appleby this morning. Harold Marsh and Eddie Barrie, the two twelve year old boys who were arrested on the charge of stealing beer and cigars from a freight car, were permitted to withdraw their pleas of "not guilty" and enter pleas of "guilty." Sentence was suspended in both instances and the cases were adjourned two months. It was understood that George Williams and S. W. Wood who engaged in a fist fight at the corner of Milwaukee and Jackson streets last evening would answer this afternoon to a complaint made against them for disturbing the peace. Thomas Mackin was given twenty days in jail as a common drunk. Frank Riley pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was sentenced to pay $3 and costs or spend eight days in jail. He went to jail. The same sentence for the same cause was meted out to John Hageny but he chose to pay the fine.

CALIFORNIA HAS BEAUTIFUL HOMES

Bon Lomond Is the Resting Place of Many Former Janesville People.

Ben Lomond, Cal.—This picturesque town takes its name from the mountain known by that name and lies nestled at its eastern base. Ben Lomond mountain is in the Santa Cruz range which extends down to the city of Santa Cruz, ten miles distant. The census gives the town in winter a population of 300, but in summer those who flee from heated cities bring it up to over 2,000. Here is an ideal spot for a summer outing and cottages can be secured at very reasonable prices. These room cottages rent for $15 per month. These have bath-rooms and are completely furnished for simple house-keeping.

"The Highlands," the finest of the cottages, rents for $200 per month. This has a billiard room, swimming tank and elegant baths. The grounds are spacious and beautifully decorated with flowers, while the interior and furnishings of the cottage equal many fine city homes.

There are two general stores in Ben Lomond, and in them may be found everything needed. Wisconsin's

CHAPTER XX.
ONE morning shortly after this Mrs. Hillyer met Jim Kenner on the main street of the village near the warehouse and paused to chat with him. "I'm still workin' on yore case," she told him. "The only trouble is that you are too backward to help. I serve you up with different gravy at every meal an' keep you on the sideboard to eat cold 'twixt meals, but if you don't come up some time an' take a hand she'll want a change o' diet."

Kenner's honest face reddened. "I'm afraid I'm gettin' too old, Mrs. Hillyer," he laughed in high pleasure. "I give you my word, I worry all the time about my age."

"Worry?" she laughed. "What does age amount to? The older a man gets in this life the younger he is in the next, an' from all accounts, the next is better an' keeps body at a standstill. Lord, you don't look like a feller that worries about anything unless it's for the lack o' some devilmint. Mr. Hillyer's told me how you love to gawd old Hanks. I reckon since Bob's done the way he has, you'll have it in for you all, because Mr. Hillyer says Hanks predicted from the first that Bob'd come to no good. I hadn't seen Mr. Hillyer since Mrs. Dugan told me about it, but I'll worry 'im like this, fer, you know, jest day before yesterday he let Bob have another two thousand to enlarge his business on. Enhance, I say. A boy o' that age ort to be spanked for what he's done—jest when folks was braggin' on 'im, man."

"Why, Mrs. Hillyer?"—Kenner's eyes were wide open in astonishment—"what are you talkin' about?"

"Talkin' about? Jim Kenner, do you mean to tell me that you, the biggest man gossipier in Durley, don't know what Bob Hanks has gone and done?"

"I'm at the fust of it, Mrs. Hillyer."

"Well, he simply got that little orphan gal, Dora May, some'n' other from Louisville, out o' Mrs. Styles' boardin' school last night an' driv' her in a buggy to Springfield an' got a country preacher to marry 'em."

"Good Lord, Mrs. Hillyer!"

"That's what he done," went on Mrs. Hillyer. "They spent the night at the preacher's house, took breakfast, an' driv' back to Durley. They've put permanent at the Johnston House. Mrs. Dugan went up and seed what Bob had registered 'R. O. Hanks and Lady,' bless you! An' that chit o' a gal in short dresses hardly below the knee! Mrs. Dugan says while she was that a-lookin' old Hanks come in as yaller as a squash an' axed if they had rice yet. The clerk told 'im no—that the bridegroom had told 'im to say that he was not at home to any callers, an' if it was about business they wanted to see 'im to refer 'em to his head salesman at the store. Did you ever? Is it any wonder his daddy wouldn't set 'im up in business? The wust big head on earth is the sort that young boys has when they think they can start in to raisin' a family. Bob couldn't stand prosperity, I reckon. Mrs. Dugan says Mrs. Styles has dismissed school fer, the rest o' the week an' is walkin' about the campus on her hands with her feet in the air. It seems that the gal was put in Mrs. Styles' care by some kin o' her'n, an' the old lady don't know what she's to do about it. That's some secret about who an' what the gal is anyway. Mrs. Styles is afraid it will bust up the institution. Mrs. Dugan says it will help the school—folks will send the scrub girls their to git 'em married off. Hain't they heard it at the warehouse?"

"They hadn't when I left about twenty minutes ago, Mrs. Hillyer."

"Well, I won't stop you. I see Mrs. Stilman leavin' over the fence without a bonnet or shawl in this wind. I'll go an' ease 'er up. I know you're eechin' to tell it to yore gang."

A few minutes after Kenner had exploded his information at the office old Hanks came in. He was pale, and his skin looked as dry as old parchment, but he was eating roasted peanuts, breaking the husks with steady, prong-like finger nails. He sat down without a word and dropped a handful of nuts into the stove.

"Jim," he said suddenly to Kenner, "what did you ever do about that account Bill Hanks was a-ownin' you?"

"I got it yet," said Kenner, throwing a knowing smile around the room.

"Well, if you'll discount it enough to make it interesting, I'll buy it. I've got 'im tied up with a piece o' land o' his'n, an' I want the land."

"I reckon we kin make a deal," said the cotton buyer as he wiped a smile from his facile mouth with his long hand. "I reckon you heard that Bob had taken to himself a helpmeint?"

The group hung on the old man's reply. Hanks crushed another peanut in his hand and raised the best part of it to his lips.

"I don't care what he does," he said. "I told you all you'd make a fool of 'im, an' now I reckon you see I was right." He was staring acutely at Hillyer. "You started it," he blurted out. "That ain't one boy in forty million that kin keep from glittin' the big head with such responsibilities put on 'im all of a sudden, but I hadn't earlin'. I reckon you know how to git yore money back."

"Oh, I don't know that this means absolute ruin," said Hillyer in his own defense. "Somewhat I've got faith in Bob yet. A boy full o' puppy love will think: It would be best for it to get out now before she was done school, an' so he got Mrs. Styles to not to mention it an' made Dora May promise not to tell it. But, of course, when we an' her got engaged, and—"

"Oh, I knew all this would come," Bob said in a regretful tone to George, who was eying him in slow wonder. "But I ain't the fool I look, George. Make Jake go out of the office, an' I'll tell you all about it."

The negro did not have to be informed that he was not wanted, and with a sly laugh, half of apology, he hurried out into the warehouse.

"You could be a big enough fool for any use an' not be as big a one as you look," said old Hanks, with a sneer.

"Look y' here, young man!" demanded Kenner, "didn't you tell me t'other day that you was goin' to let up on that ruckus?"

"I'm not tellin' you I wasn't goin' to steal the girl out for any more than a buggy ride," said Bob, with a smile. "There will be no need of that in the future, I hope."

"So that's what you meant?" laughed Kenner.

"Yes; that's what I meant."

Bob drew one of the high revolving stools up near the stove and got up on it, his heels resting on one of the rungs. His new broadcloth trousers glistened in the light from the window.

"I see I'll have to tell you all about it from the first," he began in a strangely confident tone. "I don't ask anybody odds, an' I wouldn't bother to explain to most folks, but I'll acknowledge I want you folks down here to think well of me, for you are all business men and I'm a business man."

"That you are," snarled Hanks. "Thar's business men o' yore grade in every pore house an' asylum in America."

"Now, you keep quiet if you want me to tell about this thing," said Bob. "I am a business man. I know how to make money. Everything I've put my hand to since I got a start has turned out a fair profit. If I couldn't make money faster than you, father, I'd take in my sign. You've always been afraid of big deals. Go slow, but be a good train."

"That you are," snarled Hanks. "Thar's business men o' yore grade in every pore house an' asylum in America."

"Old enough the devil!" broke in Hanks. "You look like you are with that fuzz on your lip."

"I reckon a man ought to be his own judge as to whether he is old enough for a step of that kind," Bob said, with sudden dignity.

"It began this way. There was three sophomores at Mrs. Styles' school and they all seemed bent on seeing which one could make me like 'em the most. They was all pretty enough an' sharp enough, an' I reckon they was just human nature for me to carry on with 'em a little. I don't know if I liked one better than another at first. It was just the fun of seeing 'em wrangle," Bob laughed out impulsively. "They pretended to be as thick as molasses in the winter, but they hated one another like snakes. Then they got to telling lies on each other. I knew they were lies because I caught up with 'em. Finally I saw that Dora May—"

"Do you mean Mrs. Hanks?" asked Kenner, with mock solemnity.

"Yes, my wife," replied Bob. "As I say, I finally saw she was just the girl I was looking for, and I made up my mind to get married and be done with it. Thinking about her and trying to see her took up too much time. I told her my folks would object to it, but she advised me to go ahead. She's as independent as hog on ice, an' she can afford to be."

Bob paused for a moment, twirling his fingers between his knees, and then he went on: "I reckon I'll have to tell you all something. I don't know as I'd tell it now, but father is raisin' such a row over my marryin' that it puts me in a bad light and hurts my business. My credit won't be worth shucks if it gets out that my daddy has gone clean back on me—that is, until they know about my wife's connections. The truth is, Dora May's got plenty of money."

"Money?" echoed Kenner and Hillyer in a breath.

"That's what I said," answered Bob calmly.

"Then you married her fer that," said Kenner sternly.

"No, I didn't," replied Bob. "The truth is, I liked her before I knew

IN THE HOLY LAND.

MANY STRUCTURES HAVE BEEN RAISED BY CHRISTIANS.

Convent of the Cross Among the Most Interesting—Biblical Story Connected With Its Site—The Tree of Crucifixion.

(Special Correspondence.) Palestine the land of Molamme, dians, neglected by civilization and ignored by commerce, where Europeans only pass through on a speedy tour, with no desire to remain, is notwithstanding, filled with charitable institutions, churches and convents, belonging to innumerable different sects. In behalf of the church and to propagate her creeds, men have willingly given up all that Europe and civilization offered them, and have gone on crusades and pilgrimages to guard their sacred places from the hands of the infidel.

Thus it comes about that most of the Europeans in the Holy Land are found within religious institutions, principally in convents and monasteries. In all villages of any importance there is a Christian church and a convent; sometimes there are two, belonging to different sects; indeed, it is not unusual to find a large church built over some great traditional site, and numerous chapels within, each representing a different Christian sect.

Among the most important and interesting convents in Palestine is the Convent of the Cross. This is one of the most valued possessions of the Greek Church. The story which is woven around this spot is very peculiar, linking together, as it does, biblical characters of all ages, in a strange legend which supposes them all to have had something to do with the tree which was planted in Abraham's day and finally became the cross of Christ.

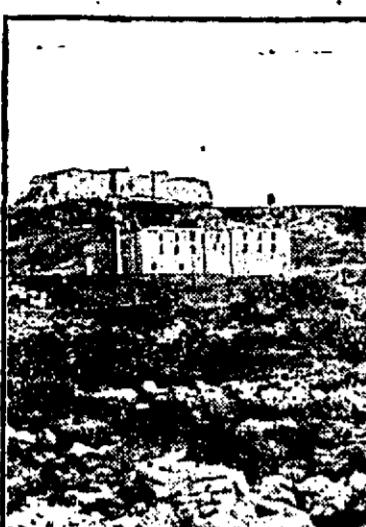

The convent presents a very medieval appearance, being a large, gloomy, square building of stone. It is situated in the valley of Gethsemane, on the southwest of Jerusalem. The convent is built low down in the valley, which abounds in large olive trees. All around are the bare, stony hills which inclose the little vale. Rugged paths lead down to the monastery, which stands absolutely alone, distant from every village.

The chapel bell, ringing for matins and vespers, re-echoing over these hills, is heard only by the devout within the convent and perhaps by some stray peasant treading his way over the hills to Jerusalem, or a shepherd boy cheerfully playing his flute as he leads his sheep home. The convent was established by the Greek Patriarch of Jerusalem to form a boarding school for youths wishing to be trained for the priesthood. Some of the students are natives of Palestine, and others come from Greece. They all speak modern Greek. Fifty youths are admitted at once. There are ten professors, who instruct them in all branches of education as well as in theology. It is a seven years' course. The youths live very plainly, their board being of the simplest. Interested visitors are courteously shown around, and many visit the large refectory at supper time.

The chapel within the convent is not large, but it is richly decorated, as usual in Greek churches. At the eastern end of the chapel are some steps, above which is a high screen of carved wood and gilt inclosing a small chamber, where mass is celebrated. A stain across the altar marks the blood shed at the Persian massacre under Chosroes. The pavement is of marble, laid in elaborate patterns made of innumerable stones. On each side of the aisles are large columns decorated with frescoes of saints in quaint attire and of peculiar perspective. The service is in Greek. The music is all vocal on the Greek Church never em-templating the erection of his beautiful temple in Jerusalem. He ordered his workmen to cut down the best trees in the neighborhood. Then men, on coming to Lot's tree, hesitated.

It was so beautiful they regretted having to cut it down. But they obeyed the king's command, and as they did so an exquisite odor like incense filled the air. As Solomon would have no noise in the Temple, all sawing and hewing had to be done elsewhere, and this tree was prepared in the valley itself. But the beams which they brought up to the temple were never of the right dimensions. There seemed to be a fatality about them, and the workmen angrily cast the beams aside, exclaiming "What an accursed tree!" The timber lay unnoticed for 1,100 years, when it was found and used for the crucifixion. After the crucifixion, no one knew what had become of the cross of Christ till Queen Helena, in 335, came to the Holy Land in search of it. She had a vision in which she saw the place where the cross was buried. She set men to dig for it, and they found it in the very spot of her dream. She immediately had a beautiful cathedral built over the site, and it stands there to this day, an interesting goal for Christian pilgrims—the Church of the Holy Sepulcher in Jerusalem.

To prove the veracity of the newly-found cross, it was asserted that pieces of the wood, when worn, acted as charms for incurable diseases. To this day it is believed by many that pieces of this cross are veritable talismans.

This is the story the monks tell, and we might add that if all these pieces of the cross were put together, they would be sufficient to make a cross many times the size of the original.

"The stump and root of the tree," explains the guiding monk, "are still standing, covered over by the convent." The monks claim further that the white flowers which Eve loved so well changed their color to red when the tree was used for the cross. And they point to the glorious red anemones which abound in the valley and grow so thickly as to make a veritable crimson blanket over the earth.

AMERICA FIRST AS BEERMAKING.

Germany Yields to United States in Production of Beverage.

Washington, Aug. 9.—"Germany yields the first place in beer production to the United States," declares Frank Mason, consul general of Berlin, in a report to the department of commerce and labor. He shows for the annual report of the German Brewers' association that their production last year was less by 132,085,230 gallons than that of the American breweries. The falling off is accounted for variously—cold, wet weather, the spread of temperance principles, the practice of economy by the middle classes and the abolition in many shops of the "beer pause" and the substitution of tea and coffee as beverages.

KILL SON AND WOUND FATHER.

Detected Chicken Thieves Open Fire With Deadly Effect.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 9.—Constable Daniel O'Brien was killed and his father, John O'Brien, was probably mortally wounded near Hillside Station, suburb, by two chicken thieves. Hearing a noise in their chicken house the two men went out to investigate and as they walked through the yard they were fired upon by the thieves. Daniel O'Brien fell dead with a bullet in his heart. Two more shots were fired and the elder O'Brien dropped, shot through the body and arm. The murderers fled. Four suspects have thus far been taken.

ALL READY FOR G. A. R. MEETING.

Boston Completed Arrangements for Encampment Next Monday.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 9.—Preparations for the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which opens here next Monday, are now practically complete. The first day will be given up to receptions and a parade by the naval brigade and marines. The great parade takes place on Tuesday. Spectators' stands seating more than 500,000 persons are being constructed along Boston common and at other points. The business sessions of the encampment will be opened on Wednesday. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee announces that he will be unable through press of business to come to Boston with the other confederate veterans who will make the journey. The work of decorating the city has begun. A large number of business houses have been hung with flags and hunting and many welcoming inscriptions are being put in conspicuous places.

The monks of the convent claim that Adam and Eve settled, after their banishment from Eden, in this valley, which was then covered with beautiful white flowers. The story goes on to tell how Abraham and Lot, many years later, visited the spot, and Lot was commanded by an angel to plant a young tree in the valley. He did so and brought water with which to refresh it all the way from the River Jordan.

Still seven hundred years later, King Solomon came here when con-

HER GREAT SCHEME.

"Have you took up with Christian Science for your corns, Amanda?" asked Ephraim Medbury of Barley Sheaf the other day, after he had recovered from his astonishment at seeing his wife throw a box of corn plasters and the bunions knives she had wielded for years out into the back lot.

"No, I haven't took up with Christian Science, or with any other nonsense," replied his wife with some asperity. "If you read the paper every week as closely as I do, Eph Medbury, you'd know what's going on in this world, and if you had a grain of sense you'd be able to guess why I'm never going to cut those corns again."

"There's nothing in the paper, and I've got sense enough to know that you'll be hobbling on two canes in about a week if you don't pare down that bunions and put on a plaster."

"I know I'm going to suffer, Eph Medbury. I'm going to suffer for your sake and for mine and for Sarah's, who's getting along toward 40 and doesn't seem to have any prospect. But there won't be any hobbling, because we'll have a carriage. We'll have one of those automobiles if we want one."

Eph began to get nervous about his wife's condition. They had been married 25 years, and she had never before shown any signs of being queer.

"Tell me what's on your mind, Mandy," he coaxed, soothingly.

"Well, I'll tell you, seein' as you can't seem to find out what's goin' on in the world yourself."

"There's a long piece in this week's paper about what the Government of these United States is going to do to find out what the weather is going to be. They've got tired of those fool predictions that never hit right, and have decided to ask folks that know something to tell 'em what the weather's going to be."

"Now, the paper says that a senator has introduced a bill, or whatever you call it, to give prizes to the folks that guess right. There's a prize for predicting on rain, and there's another prize for telling whether it's going to be cold or warm or muggy.

"Now, sit down, Ephraim, and hold on to the arms of your chair before I tell you how much those prizes are going to be. If you don't you'll fall down, 'cause I guess you never dreamed of so much money in your life. Now, get your pipe going.

"There. Are you ready? Listen. One hundred thousand dollars for telling when it's going to rain and $50,000 for telling when it's going to be muggy."

"Can't you see now what I'm coming at about my corns and that $150,000? Or do you have to have a corn crib fall on you before you can put two and two together and make four?"

"The stump and root of the tree," explains the guiding monk, "are still standing, covered over by the convent." The monks claim further that the white flowers which Eve loved so well changed their color to red when the tree was used for the cross.

And they point to the glorious red anemones which abound in the valley and grow so thickly as to make a veritable crimson blanket over the earth.

CONVICT LABOR LAW IS VALID

Injunction Restraining Its Operation Is Dissolved.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 9.—Judge Humphrey in the United States circuit court dissolved the temporary injunction which he had issued June 27, restraining the payment from the state treasury to the state prison board of any part of the appropriation made by the legislature last session for the carrying on of manufactures at the state penitentiaries and reformatory under the new convict labor law, which forbids the contracting of the labor of convicts. The injunction was issued on the application of W. G. Press, a resident of Los Angeles, Cal. It was charged in the bill for the injunction that the word "wilfully" in the act was inserted in the governor's office, having been left out when the bill was being engrossed. The court held this change was not proved, the record of the general assembly showing the word was adopted as an amendment.

FLAMES THREATEN A THEATER

Cool-Headed Fire Chief Prevents Panic in Buffalo Playhouse.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Fire in the five-story building at 251 to 257 Main street caused a loss estimated at $40,000 and for a time threatened the Academy of Music next door, where a play was being produced. By hard work, however, the firemen confined the blaze to the building in which it started and the prompt appearance of cool-headed fire fighters on the stage in the Academy of Music prevented what might have been a terrible panic. The people left the playhouse without serious mishap, although there was some disorder.
